

Brandon
Greenberg

*PhD Candidate at George
Washington
University in Systems
Engineering*

Brandon Greenberg, PhD(c), MPA, CEM has over 13 years of interdisciplinary experience helping communities and organizations plan for and operate in complex, dynamic and uncertain environments. This experience includes supporting Federal, State, local and private sector clients with research, policy development, and strategy for resilience as well as information sharing and technology use in response operations. Mr. Greenberg holds a Master of Public Administration from New York University's Wagner School of Public Service and is a Systems Engineering PhD Candidate at The George Washington University where he researches ways to improve information management and sharing in disasters.