

Rick Gilkey, Ph.D.

Professor, Emory University Goizueta Business School and School of Medicine

Professor Gilkey holds a joint appointment at Emory University, where he serves on the faculty of the Goizueta Business School as Professor in the practice of organization and management, and the School of Medicine, where he is an Associate Professor of psychiatry. He is the recipient of the university's highest teaching honor, the Emory Williams Award, and Goizueta Business Schools highest teaching honor, The Mark Adler Award. Rick also serves on the faculty of Duke Corporate Education.

Current research is in the area of neuro- imaging, which involves the use of MRI scanning technology to gain images of executives who are involved in strategic thinking, moral reasoning and creative problem solving. This research focuses on understanding how the brain operates in high-level cognitive tasks of an executive population, and how to facilitate these types of learning and thinking.

Rick Gilkey's articles have appeared in several leading professional journals, and he has served as an editorial consultant to The New York Times and Fortune Magazine. Rick is co-author of a book on post-merger management entitled Joining Forces: Creating and Managing Successful Mergers and Acquisitions (Prentice-Hall), and he is a contributing author to Organizations on the Couch: Psychoanalytic Approaches to Understanding Organizational Dynamics.

He is also editor of The 21st Century Healthcare Leader and contributing author to a book on strategic corporate leadership entitled, The Agile Organization, published by Jossey-Bass.
